As a German subsidiary of the internationally operating company SLAT with headquarters in Lyon, we specialize in user-related DC UPS solutions for critical infrastructures and technical networks in the areas of safety & security, video and perimeter security, access control, fire detection technology, voice alarm, building and automation technology.

Today, SLAT is one of the leading manufacturers of uninterruptible DC power supplies in Europe. Our range of services is CE approved and stands for premium quality. We have set ourselves the task of further expanding the success course of our customer-oriented solutions division. We are already serving key market needs using energy-efficient LiFePO4 technology and offering individually assembled network interface cabinets.

Thanks to our partnership with VdS, BHE, ZVEI and our participation in European standards committees, we are in a constant exchange of experts and thereby promote our product and process quality.

Our customers are integrators, installers, distributors and OEMs.
