

Inspiration from nature

With inspirations from the wild, it is possible to create low-maintenance plantings for a high range of diversity in the garden.

Plantings, which don't require a lot of irrigation, but which do bring cooling and decorative value with blooming throughout the seasons and nice winter features as well.

Plantings, which are important to biodiversity, and which can survive future extremities of climate change and even benefit from it.

We aim to contribute to restoring the balance between humanity and nature using local ecology.
